Do you have a student with an Autism Spectrum Disorder in your classroom?

ATTENTION TEACHERS, INTEGRATION AIDES AND SUPPORT STAFF

More and more children with an autism spectrum disorder ('ASD') are entering the mainstream education system. Teaching and support staff have indicated that they need more training to cater to the special needs of this group, to avoid making school a negative experience for all.

The ABIA is pleased to be able to offer a training program which has been specially designed to equip teachers and integration aides to meet the challenges of teaching children with ASD.

Making it Work : A Program for Teachers and Integration Aides Working with Children with Autism Spectrum Disorders

This program is presented by trainers with extensive experience in working with children with ASD in mainstream education and includes a range of practical strategies to help these children adapt to classroom and playground environments.

The Making It Work program is highly recommended for anyone wishing to develop their teaching and inclusion skills.
